IIJ to Announce A New Lineup: IIJ Mobile Service/Type K

TOKYO—March 26, 2015—Internet Initiative Japan Inc. (IIJ, NASDAQ: IJJI, TSE1: 3774), one of Japan's leading Internet access and comprehensive network solutions providers, today announced the addition of "IIJ Mobile Service/Type K"—a mobile data communications service that uses KDDI's au 4G LTE network—to its "IIJ Mobile Service" line of high-speed mobile data communications services for enterprise-class customers. IIJ will begin receiving orders for Type K on April 1, 2015.

Previously, IIJ has offered series of IIJ Mobile Service compatible with two carriers: Type D, which uses NTT DOCOMO's LTE/3G networks, and Type E, which uses Ymobile's 3G/HSPA+ service. With the addition of Type K to the IIJ Mobile Service lineups, IIJ will be the first in Japan to deliver an LTE multi-carrier MVNO service through a Layer-2 connection (By IIJ's investigation). Customers will be able to choose the optimal mix of carriers and expect to enjoy numerous benefits for multiple carriers, including improved connectivity through complementary coverage areas, data-sharing among Type D and Type K which can be utilized as a backup line and activate line, and fallback access to another carrier's network during outages.
